MT. MORRIS TWP. - A man stranded in his pickup on one of the coldest mornings this year says he might owe his life to a Genesee County Road Commission driver who stopped to help him. Scott St. Meyers, 33, of Saginaw County said he waited nearly two hours for someone to stop after his truck quit running on I-75, north of Pierson Road. Whipping winds of up to 40 mph made it feel like up to 30 degrees below zero early Feb. 11.

"I had tears in my eyes (when he stopped)," said Meyers, who had no cellphone on his way to work that morning. "Everything was numb ... I couldn't feel my legs or hands."
Road Commission driver Aaron Snider, 36, of Clio spotted Meyers, helped him to his truck and took him home. Snider had been on the job less than six months. "People nowadays don't take time to check (if someone is stranded, but) I think people need to do more things like that," Snider said.
